

BAR GETTYSBURG MAN FROM LIST OF '24 HUNTERS

Clair H. Irvin Is One Of 97 Game Law Viola- tors Placed On Black- list By Game Com- mission.

The name of Clair H. Irvin, Gettysburg R. 3, appears on a list of ninety-seven game law violators who have been placed upon the blacklist of the state game commission and will be denied licenses to hunt during the coming season.

A list of the men who have been punished for their disregard of the game laws has been placed in the hands of all the game officers and county treasurers in the state. The treasurers were asked to see that no licenses to hunt are issued to the men whose names are included in the blacklist. Applications for hunting licenses are now being filed with the county treasurers in all sections of the state and the county officials are charged with the task of seeing that the men whose licenses have been revoked do not secure the permit to hunt.

Variety of Violations

Every variety of game law violation is included in the list of revocations. Killing of songbirds, hunting out of season, discharging firearms while intoxicated and slaughtering of animals in excess of the legal limit resulted in the major portion of the revocations. Many of the hunters were placed upon a two-year blacklist, while others are to be denied licenses for one year. The license of the one Adams county hunter is revoked until May 1, 1925.

The men who have been punished for infractions of the game laws are liable to a fine of $40 for each day they hunt in the event that they secure licenses under their own or assumed names. A similar fine is also to be levied if they seek to circumvent the punishment by hunting without a license.

The number of license revocations forms but a very small percentage of the total number of 500,000 licenses issued last year. Apparently the sportsmen are a law abiding group for there have been but 296 licenses revoked in the entire history of the game commission.

Included in the list of men punished by the game commission are sportsmen from virtually every county in the state.

TROOPERS SEIZE BOOZE MACHINE

Automobile Containing Quantity of Alleged Intoxicating Li- quor Confiscated at Cale- donia Park.

A Cadillac touring car, bearing a Maryland license and believed to be owned by a resident of Hagerstown, Maryland, was confiscated by State police Wednesday afternoon at Caledonia Park, after a search of the machine yielded a quantity of alleged moonshine liquor.

The machine, which was picked up by Sergeant A. F. Dahlstrom and Private R. W. Frutchie, of the local substation of the State police, was taken to Chambersburg, where it is being held by the Franklin county authorities. With it is a John Doe warrant, for the arrest of the owner, if he claims the machine.

Six pint bottles, nine half pint bottles and one quart bottle of alleged moonshine liquor were found in the car. Authorities believe the car contained a greater supply of the beverage, but that during the day most of the stock had been sold to colored picnicers who spent the day at Caledonia park. Colored persons from Gettysburg, Chambersburg, Frederick, Hagerstown and other places were among assembled at Caledonia.

The machine in which the liquor was found was parked off the Lincoln Highway. The general appearance of the car attracted the State police, who made a search and found the alleged liquor. Although inquiry was made among the picnicers for the owner of the machine, no one came forward to claim it and the car was taken to Chambersburg.

Michigan Leads Honor Guests Here

Ypsilanti, Michigan, Chicago, Illinois, and Henderson, North Carolina, comprise the cities, from which tourists "furthest away from home" are registered at local hotels.

The Misses Eleanor and Ethel Nestor, of Ypsilanti, are registered at the Hotel Hoffman. Mr. and Mrs. R. F. McCoin, of Henderson, are at the Eagle Hotel and Mr. and Mrs. John J. Cullman and family registered at the Hotel Gettysburg. Proprietors of hotels here, announced this morning that the tourist delegations to Gettysburg was the largest at this period of the year, than at any other time.

FIREMEN BUY TRUCK CHASSIS

Voluntary Contributions Solicited From Residents of Vicini- ty to Finance Project.

Having ratified the purchase of a chassis for a service truck, members of the Gettysburg Fire Company at a special meeting, Wednesday evening, launched a drive for funds for the purchase of the body and equipment of the new piece of fire fighting apparatus.

A second-hand Cadillac chassis, in splendid condition, was purchased by the committee, composed of James B. Aumen, Joseph Codori and Arthur E. Huthison, for approximately $550. The car was first tested on all steep hills around Gettysburg by motor experts, who found the engine in good condition.

To Cost $1250

The company estimates the cost of a new body, suitable to the purposes for which the chassis was purchased, at approximately $700, bringing the total cost of the apparatus, when complete, to $1250.

By action of the company, the sum of $525 has already been appropriated, leaving a total of about $700 to be raised by residents of Gettysburg and the persons living in the territory served by the local fire company.

The new piece of apparatus will be used to carry extra hose lengths, gum coats, boots and hats, small chemical tanks and rope.

Voluntary Contribution

No house-to-house canvass for funds is planned by the fire company, but voluntary contributions will be received from now on by the members of the purchasing committee names of contributors to be printed in The Times on Thursday of each week. The campaign for funds is not expected to consume more than a few weeks. An appeal is to be made especially to persons living within a radius of ten miles of Gettysburg, who are served by the local company, since, it is pointed out, these people receive the same benefit from the company's service as those living in Gettysburg. During the past twelve months, the company answered 22 calls, five of them from outside the borough limits, one ten miles away.

Fire Protection

James B. Aumen, fire chief, and chairman of the committee in charge of the purchase of the new apparatus and of the drive for funds, said this morning that the company's only object in securing the truck is to give the people of Adams county the best possible fire protection.

The list of first contributors to the truck fund will appear in next Thursday's issue of The Times.

President Rufus Bushman appointed M. E. Crouse, Milton Bender, Earl Stallsmith, Harry Troxell and Preston Hull on a committee to hire a band and make all arrangements for the parade of the Gettysburg company in East Berlin on Labor Day when the annual convention of the Adams County Firemen's Association will be held. The company also paid its per capita in the county association. The local company now has 107 members in the county association.

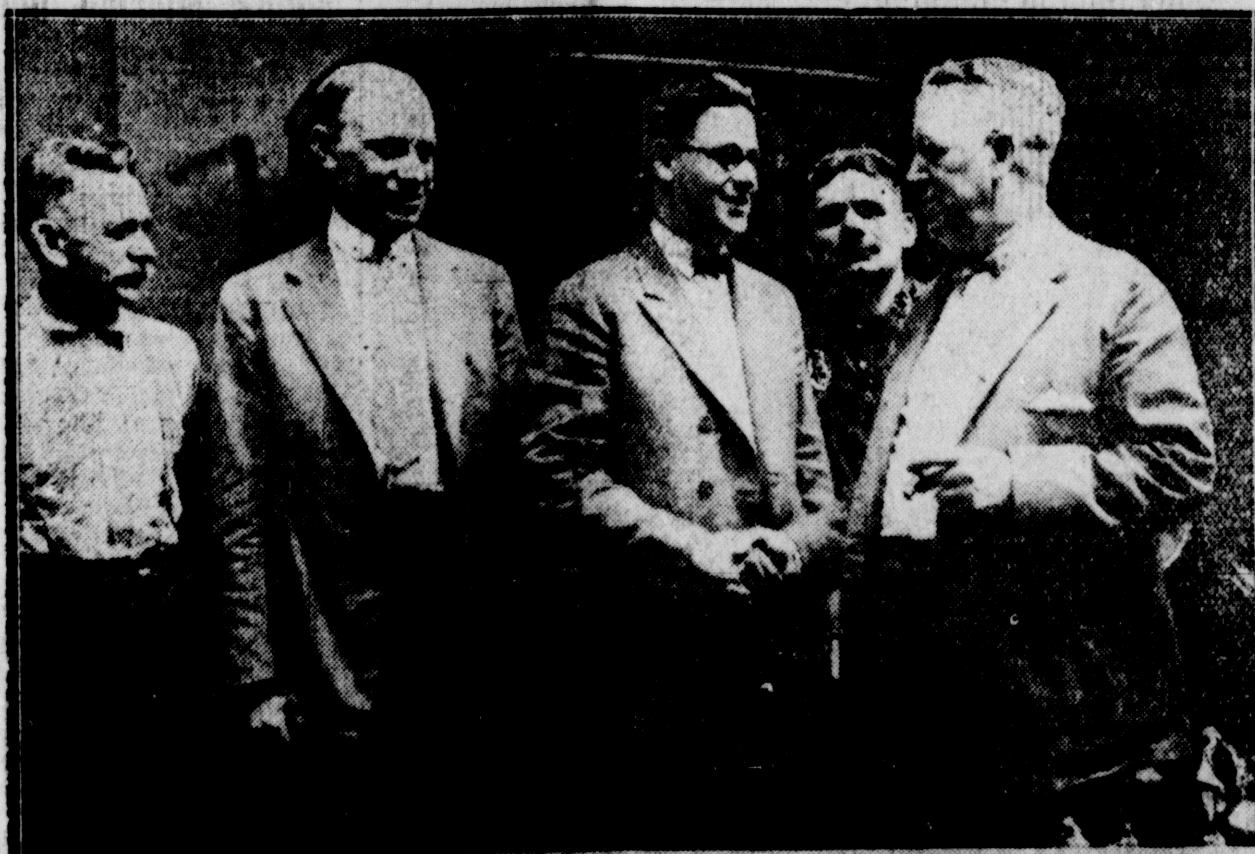

Initiate Members Into Local "40-8"

A special meeting of the Forty and Eight, of the American Legion post here, has been called for Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock, when arrangements will be made for the trip to the York branch of the "sideshow of the Legion." Initiation of members into the local organization of the Forty and Eight will.

James T. Emery (with cigar) and Employees

Six employees of the Union Club Motor Livery, of Chicago, decided to give their boss a birthday present, but he gave them the surprise of their lives. He just told them he was going to retire to Florida to live, and that the entire $100,000 business was theirs, lock, stock and barrel. The boss was James T. Emery, shown shaking hands with his son, Henry, who was one of the favored employees. The others shown in the picture, from left to right, are James Brady, Fred Florner, John Forsberg, (in rear). Mrs. Helen Campbell, the other employee, is not shown on photograph.

MILLION GALLONS OF GAS CONSUMED

$20,475 Paid Into State Emergency Gas Tax Fund; County to Receive Fourth, $5,119.

Adams county motorists used 1,023,750 gallons of gasoline during the first six months of this year and paid $20,475 into the State emergency gas tax fund.

Of this sum, the county will receive $5,119, or one-fourth of the tax collected.

Figures on gasoline consumption in this county were contained in a report on emergency tax receipts announced Wednesday by State Treasurer Charles A. Snyder.

Double Receipts

The report shows that total State collections under the gas tax law, for the year ending June 30, amounted to $7,623,947, more than double the previous year's receipts which totaled $3,255,569.63. To pile up this huge tax the gasoline users of Pennsylvania consumed 381,197,039 gallons during the fiscal year. Under the act, passed by the 1923 Legislature, a tax of two cents a gallon is placed upon gasoline, one-half cent of which levy goes to the various counties for road work. The tax during the previous year was only one cent a gallon.

Half Year's Collections

During the first six months of 1924, collections under the law amounted to $3,941,680.62, of which $985,420 will be returned to the counties. Receipts for the quarter ending June 20 were $2,246,474. The counties will receive as their share of the 1923-24 tax $1,905,985.

Under the one cent law, the counties received one half the tax receipts. Their share in 1922-23 totaled $1,627,784.

The first year's operation of the tax shows that it will yield approximately $12,000,000 to the general fund of the State Treasury during the two-year period it is in effect. The Legislature estimated that the return from this tax would be from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000.

Allegheny and Philadelphia counties lead in the tax returns for the six-month period. Allegheny using 28,807,250 gallons and Philadelphia 37,747,250 gallons.

Mrs. Mary M. Baker Dies At 84 Years

Mrs. Mary M. Baker died at her home in Buchanan Valley, near St. Ignace church, Wednesday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock, aged 84 years, 3 months and 21 days.

She is survived by four sons and two daughters: John, Mrs. F. W. Knouse, Samuel, William Edward, and Aloysius, all of Buchanan Valley, and Mrs. John Carbaugh, of Franklin county. Twenty-five grandchildren and 27 great-grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services Friday, meeting at the house at 9:30 o'clock, with further services from St. Ignace church, conducted by the Rev. W. W. Whalen. Interment in the cemetery adjoining the church.

Old Sol Reigns At 98 Degrees

Laurel Dam Boils; Picnick- ers Toss Eggs in Stream —Emerge Hard-Boiled; Merchants Start Can- ning Factories; Chowder Faucets Installed Direct To Homes.

The thermometer had hovered around the 98 degree mark all the afternoon. The chief was off on the links perspiring to be a real golfer. The society reporter was imbibing coca cola; the editor had gone to get a shave and the proof reader was busily engaged in resting before the electric fan. The court reporter sat back in his chair. The electric fan whizzed with a droning tone. The typewriters were silent and the operators were over at a drink emporium downing choice sundaes.

Then suddenly the telephone rang angrily.

"Great snakes, man, where have you been?" came the voice of the editor over the telephone. "Did you know that Laurel Dam is boiling?"

As predicted in the forecasts for several days the continued sizzling temperature had made the water in the dam so hot it was actually boiling. Bang-bang bang-bang went the typewriter as the court reporter pounded out the news relayed from J. Donald Swope's cottage at Laurel Dam.

Hard Boiled Eggs

"Picnickers are tossing eggs into the water and fishing them out hard boiled," continued the voice over the phone. "Business men are bringing their shaving sets to Dick's Dam to shave. Nurse maids are lowering nursing bottles into the stream to heat them. Enterprising restaurant proprietors have established booths along the shore and are advertising boiled dinners. Landries are announcing cuts in rates. Hot water heater manufacturing companies are filing petitions in bankruptcy."

The reporter wiped his brow and grinned feverishly as he hung up the receiver. He sat back and reread what he had written from the dictation of the chief.

"Zing-a-ling," again the telephone and it was "Doc" Wolff, of Arendtsville, this time: "Just heard the Arendtsville hustlers have organized huge canning factories, ore docks, pipe mills, tobacco plants and other firms, and are preparing to build their fac-

Price Of Wheat Drops Three Cents

Adams county farmers witnessed a three cent decrease in the price of wheat, according to quotations received this morning. With wheat quoted at $1.25, a new high mark for 1924, county farmers experienced a delightful period of prosperity and grain merchants came into their own. The $1.25 price has been in effect since last Tuesday, and today's price dropped to $1.22.

Miss Dorothy Kime, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Kime, residing on the Oyler and Spangler farm, east of Gettysburg, has won one of the state's eighty scholarships, according to announcement today by Dr. Charles D. Koch, director of the bureau of professional credentials, Department of Public Instruction, Harrisburg.

The scholarship examinations were held in 332 high schools in the state on May 2, and were participated in by 1458 students, representing every county in the state. Of this number the 80 receiving the highest grades are entitled to one scholarship each, except those counties which contain more than one Senatorial district, in which case each district is given a scholarship.

The scholarships are worth $100 annually for four years and entitle the holders to enter any accredited college or university in the state. Miss Kime plans to enter Gettysburg College in the fall, majoring in Latin, which subject she expects to teach upon graduating.

Honor Student

The winner here stood first in her class which graduated from the high school in May, and was one of six who took the examination for the scholarship.

All candidates were required to take examinations in English and American history. Each was allowed to elect a third subject from the following list: mathematics, physics, chemistry, biology, German, French, Latin or Spanish. Dr. Koch said the grades made in American history by the majority of applicants were low, while those for English were "uniformly high" with those in the elective studies ranging from low to high in individual cases.

Fred B. Wilson, student in the Carnegie High School, Allegheny county, won highest honors in the state examination for the scholarships, making a total of 282 out of a possible 300 points. Miss Constance Zeigler, New Cumberland, was second with 278 points; Ruth Graham, Mercer, third, with 276 points; Richard N. Thayer, Central High, Scranton, fourth, with 275, and William Campbell, Catasauquus, fifth, with 273.

PRETTY GIRL TAKES STAND FOR SLAYERS

Crowe Charges "Deliberate Perjury"; Wit- ness Whispers To Loeb As She Leaves Court Room.

(By Associated Press.)

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Introduction of lay witnesses by the defense in seeking mitigation of punishment for Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, confessed murderers of Robert Franks, brought from Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, the shouted charge that one of them had "committed deliberate perjury."

Miss Lorraine Nathan, a "school day" friend of Loeb, was on the witness stand when Mr. Crowe in seeking to impeach her testimony charged that she was varying her remarks from statements she made in his office shortly after Loeb was arrested for the Franks' murder.

Would Not Lie

Miss Nathan had just testified that she previously was fond of Loeb as he was of her, but that he did not "feel that way" and that being a lady she would not lie to save Loeb.

Mr. Crowe's denial of the defense's right to have Miss Nathan read her earlier statement led to an early recess.

The defense and state were directed to bring in authorities on the defense's contention that Miss Nathan should see the records of earlier remarks before proceeding as a witness.

Miss Nathan, the first girl witness to appear for the defendants, was a pretty although somewhat nervous picture on the stand. She testified in a cool but somewhat catchy voice and her conclusion as to Loeb's conduct so closely paralleled that of the three mental experts who had preceded her that the state's attorney centered his cross examination ironically by addressing her as the "Doctor."

Whispers To Loeb

On the witness stand she avoided Loeb's glances but when she passed him as she left the courtroom she clutched his arm and whispered in his ear and still was talking when a bailiff jerked Loeb away from her grasp.

Miss Nathan will resume the stand for further cross examination this afternoon.

Mac Schray, University of Michigan student, was another of the witnesses called today.

HANOVER ORGAN TO BE ENLARGED

Fourteen Additional Stops Added to Church Instrument; Will Cost $46,000.

J. Herbert Springer, of Harrisburg, student at Gettysburg College, and designer of the new organ being placed in St. Matthew's new Lutheran church in Hanover, has announced, after a conference with the donor of the new instrument, that fourteen additional stops will be placed in the organ, bringing the total number to 100 speaking stops. The cost of the four-manual organ will be $46,000, in round numbers.

When completed late this year, the organ will be the largest in any Lutheran church in the world, it is said. Parts of the organ have been completed and Mr. Springer, who is organist at the church, is more than pleased with the musical qualities of the instrument and the perfect working order of the mechanical details. The new edifice in which the congregation of St. Matthew's will worship will be completed shortly and will be ready for dedication within a month or so.

A Hanover woman is bearing the entire expense of the organ, which is to be a memorial to her daughter who died recently.

WALTON LEADING IN SENATE RACE

(By Associated Press.) Oklahoma City, Aug. 7.—J. C. Walton, deposed Governor and bitter enemy of the Ku Klux Klan, appeared today to have won the Democratic Senatorial nomination having a lead of 4,484 votes in returns from yesterday's primaries over Congressman E. B. Howard, who had the Klan endorsement.

The Klan endorsed candidate for the Republican Senatorial nomination, W. B. Pine, seemed assured today of the Republican nomination, having a two to one lead over the anti-klan candidate.

CHURCH PICNIC TO BE HELD ON FRIDAY

The stage is set and plans are complete for the annual picnic of Trinity Reformed church and Sunday school Friday afternoon at Arendtsville Union Park, near Arendtsville. The picnickers will leave the church, corner of South Stratton and East High streets, promptly at 1 o'clock.

Features of the afternoon's entertainment will be a rooster chase for women at 3:50 and a baseball game between single and married men's teams at 4 o'clock. Contests for men and children will help furnish amusement during the afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock.

In prosperity let us most carefully avoid pride, disdain and arrogance. All roads may lead to Rome, but they must be traveled if one would arrive there.

Ponzi Free; Must Face New Counts

Boston, Aug. 7.—Charles Ponzi, whose get-rich-quick operations cost those who invested with him several millions of dollars, was a free man again today.

Released from the Plymouth county jail, where he had served 3½ years as a federal prisoner, he was surrendered to the state courts to meet charges of larceny in ten indictments. He was admitted to bail in $14,000 and will come before the superior court for a hearing on September 10.

RUM BOTTLING PLANT FOUND

200 Quarts Bearing Fancy Labels All Came From Same Demijohn; Un- earthed in South Jersey.

Atlantic City, Aug. 7.—Detectives early yesterday raided one of the most completely equipped plants for the manufacture and bottling of spurious liquor ever unearthed in south Jersey. Two men, one from Philadelphia, were arrested as the proprietors.

Two hundred quarts in bottles bearing far-famed labels, all poured from the same demijohn, were seized.

The plant, covering the ground floor of three houses at 2012-16 Baltic avenue, operated under the name "E. Z. Supply Company," and was protected from burglary, according to a written contract found on the premises, by Jordan's Universal Detective Agency. The contract was dated July 28, 1924, and agreed to protect the place for one year for $30, stating also that provision would be made for a special watchman at night. One of the detective agency plates was found on a door, offering $100 reward for information leading to the arrest of any trespasser.

The two arrested gave their names as Isaac Schlosser, 19, an electrician, of Philadelphia, and Michael Doran, 28, salesman, of 2024 Baltic avenue. They will be arraigned before Judge Smathers.

All of the various brands of liquor bottled was made from grain alcohol. To manufacture rye whisky caramel coloring fluid was added, while to make it "imported Scotch" a tiny vial of an unknown substance was mixed with each quart of alcohol. These vials were made in France.

The court reporter coughed and sputtered as he straightened up in his chair. The cigarette that he had started to smoke when the phone rang was an ash heap on the floor. In the machine in front of him was a blank sheet of paper.

"That's a helluva dream," he murmured, as he shut up his machine, grabbed his coat and hat and beat it for home.

MANIAC MURDERS THREE ON TRAIN

Insane Man Beats In Head of Passengers With Wrench and Then Escapes; Kills Farmer.

Benidji, Minn., Aug. 7.—Two persons were killed outright and a third died later—victims of N. J. Lindborg, who went mad on a Great Northern train en route from Crookston to Duluth yesterday.

Lindborg, whose home is Portland, Oregon, had been at Roseau. As the train neared Cass lake he suddenly went insane, grabbed a heavy wrench from a heater kit and went through the coach striking passengers on the head with it. He leaped from the train at the lake.

He was next heard from at the home of Charles Richards. Richards answered his knock and Lindborg asked him if he was a member of the American Legion. Richards answered in the affirmative. The insane man struck Richards with the wrench, dragged him into the yard and beat his head to a pulp, leaving him dead.

Secures Firearms

Lindborg then went to the home of Nick Schauter, Cass lake, where he obtained firearms and ammunition.

Roy Jondahl was Lindborg's next victim. Jondahl and Sven Holm were looking for the madman south of town when the fire whistle blew at Cass lake. They thought the man had been found and stopped their car to speak to a heavily armed stranger.

"I wonder if they found him," queried Jondahl. "No, they haven't," replied Lindborg, as he opened fire, shooting Jondahl, who returned the fire, hitting Lindborg in the hip. Jondahl got another bullet in the stomach. Lindborg then killed himself with his own gun. Jondahl was brought to the hospital here, but is not expected to live.

Among those on the train injured by Lindborg's wrench was T. J. Evans, train conductor.

Lindborg was between 40 and 50 years old, well dressed and carried $600 on his person, including a traveler's check on a Portland bank.

ARENDSVILLE STOPS CARLISLE

Arendtsville's Apple Knockers, leaders of the Adams County League, defeated the strong Carlisle A. C. team on the latter's grounds 7 to 5, in a seven-inning contest, Wednesday evening.

L. Kane was on the mound for the upper-enders and pitched a strong game, allowing the Carlislers but nine hits. Arendtsville scored 13 hits off Bybee's offerings.

The hitting of C. Kane, who had a home run and a triple in four times to bat, and Shoap, who registered two doubles and one single in four times to the platter, featured Arendtsville's game.

Arendtsville played errorless ball in the field, while two errors proved costly for Carlisle. Bybee, Carlisle's pitcher, had a home run.

Carlisle has played 20 games so far this season and won fourteen of them.

Parents Entertain On Son's Birthday

A pleasant birthday party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Frommeyer, near Gettysburg, Wednesday evening, in honor of the ninth birthday of their son, Lewis. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Howard Garvin, Howard, Jr., Dorothy and Frances Garvin, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gott, Richard, Jr., and Mary Gott, Mrs. Wilbur Stallsmith, Sara Agnes and Jane Stallsmith, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Frommeyer, Marie, Graber, Lewis and Pauline Frommeyer, Mrs. J. Clayton Hoke, Mrs. Chester Allen, Martha and Barbara Allen, Mrs. Mary Eckenrode, of Lansing, Michigan; Mrs. S. H. Patterson, of Harrisburg; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lester, of New York City; Mrs. Russell Smiley, Caroline Smiley, Dora Frommeyer, Marie King, Anna McSherry, Ruth Hamilton, Mary Rita Redding, of Littlestown; Helen and Jean Robinson, Carrie Bell, of Poolsville, Maryland; Geraldine King, John Eckenrode, of Ohio.

MURDERERS OF WOMAN CAUGHT

Assassins of Mrs. Rosalie Evans, British Subject, Are Captur- ed, According to Report.

Mexico City, Aug. 7.—The assassins of Mrs. Rosalie Evans, British subject, have been captured, according to a report given out on Wednesday at the War Department. The report came from General Roberto Cruz, military commander in the State of Puebla, where Mrs. Evans was shot and killed near her hacienda last Saturday.

"I take pleasure in reporting that Gen. Antonio Gomez Velasco, my chief of staff, informs me from Texmelucan that the assassins of Mrs. Evans have been captured," said the message from General Cruz.

Secret Service Men Aid

"Valente Quintana, chief of the Mexico City secret service, cooperated efficiently in carrying out his mission to capture the assassins. The guilty men have been brought to the city of Puebla, adequately guarded. Accompanying General Velasco and Senor Quintana came the secretary of the British Legation."

AUSTRIA LACKS LARGE CITIES

Vienna.—Austria is singularly destitute of large cities. Outside of Vienna, which has a population of nearly 2,000,000, there are only two cities in the 100,000 class—Graz with 150,000 and Linz with 101,000. There are only three others above the 20,000 mark, Innsbruck with 56,000, Salzburg 39,000 and Klagenfurt 27,000.

Men Hold Proportion in Austria

Vienna.—Notwithstanding the loss of men during the World War, post-war Austria is not much different in the proportion of its male and female population. Recent figures show that for every 1,000 men in Austria there are 1,078 women, while in 1910 there were 1,023 women to each 1,000 men.

FARM CALENDAR

Plans Complete For State-Wide Ram Sale

About forty of the finest purebred rams in the state are awaiting the fall of the auctioneer's hammer at the state-wide ram sale which is to be held at the fair grounds at New Castle on August 14. All the animals consigned to the sale have been approved by the sale committee and by W. B. Connell, extension sheep specialist at State College.

Hampshires, Southdowns, Shropshires, Dorsets and C. Type Merinos are represented in the sale list which will be distributed at the sale or will be mailed by writing to N. C. Dale, Farm Bureau Office, New Castle. This is the first state-wide purebred ram sale ever staged in Pennsylvania and is a part of a program to improve the sheep industry through the use of purebred sires.

College Offers Course For Dairy Salesmen

Two weeks of intensive training in all branches of dairy manufacturing is the program scheduled for a special dairy salesmen's course which will open at the Pennsylvania State College on August 18. This is probably the first course of its kind given in the United States and at least 40 dairy salesmen from all parts of Pennsylvania are expected to attend.

Manufacturers of dairy products and supplies have long felt the necessity of their salesmen having a thorough knowledge of every phase of the dairy industry in order that they might better serve the people to whom they sell. The short course was instituted at their request.

Several specialists will assist the regular staff of the college dairy department in giving the course. B. B. Mason, formerly accounting specialist of the agricultural extension department at State College and now with the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, will give courses in financial statements, credits, and business. The ice cream work will be handled by W. B. Combs, formerly head of dairy manufacturing at the college and now connected with the University of Minnesota.

Thrash Early—Don't stop the thrashing machine to attend a family reunion or a picnic. Every day counts in the battle of the wheat grower against the anguinous grain moth.

Testers' Short Course—A five day course to train cow testers to take charge of cow testing associations in Pennsylvania will be given by the dairy department of the Pennsylvania State College from August 11 to 16. Dairy experience and ability to handle figures are requirements for entry. Write to the dairy extension department at State College for information.

Spray for the Peach Moth—It is time to spray against the oriental peach moth as most of the eggs have been laid or will be laid during the next week. Apply a spray of nicotine sulphate and self-boiled lime sulphur now, and again in two weeks. Cool weather has delayed the development of the first brood so that there is not going to be as many broods of the moth this year. At most, there will be only four broods even if the fall is unusually long and warm.

Garden Greens—This has been a better season for greens, such as spinach, lettuce, and early celery, than for the fruiting vegetables such as tomatoes, peppers and eggplants. Those who heeded the advice last spring in these columns to plant a succession of greens so as to have a continuous supply during the summer have had an abundance. Now is the time to sow fall endive, lettuce and cress.

Damaging Insects—The pear slug and fall web-worm are doing considerable damage throughout the state. The control measure advised is to apply a spray of three pounds of arsenate of lead in 50 gallons of water. Apply at once for the web-worm for when the caterpillars get large it is hard to control them.

Last Apple Spray—It is time to apply the last apple spray. Use liquid lime sulphur testing 1.008 and three pounds of arsenate of lead to 100 gallons of water. Spray to control the brown rot in peaches should be applied soon using self-boiled lime sulphur.

Poultry Lice and Mites—Keep a close watch on your birds for the appearance of lice and mites. Lice can be controlled by using equal parts of blue ointment and vaseline. Rub a small quantity below each wing and under the vent. Paint roosts with carbolineum to control mites.

Drainage—There is nothing that shows the benefits of tile drainage more than a dry spell following a very wet spring. Crops grown on poorly drained soils do not develop a deep root system. Crops grown on tile drained land send their roots deep in to the soil and gather their moisture from subsoil when the rain falls.

Prepare for the Fruit Crop—Is your fruit picking and packing equipment in shape to handle the crop? With the shortage of labor, good equipment is very necessary. Be sure to have a good supply of boxes and other packages on hand. Incidentally, don't forget the local market as a place to sell your fruit.

FAMILY REUNION

A family reunion was held recently at the home of F. Milton Kime and wife. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. F. Milton Kime, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Kime, and children, Glenn, Dale, Lloyd and Raymond, of Rock Falls, Illinois; Mr. and Mrs. James Tate and son, James, of Gettysburg; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kime and son, Earl, of Gettysburg; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Baumbaugh and daughter, Grace, of Gettysburg, and Mrs. Marjorie Dearborn, son and daughter, DeWitt and Geraldine, of Gettysburg. The gathering represented four generations.

MECCA OF DEBATERS

London—London was recently not only the mecca of overseas visitors, but also the mecca of debaters or the City of Talk. Conferences, debates, dinners and speech making are prolific. In one day the following conferences, averaging six hours each, were in session: World Power Conference, Congress of Chambers of Commerce, British Homeopathic Congress, and Infant Welfare Conference.

LUXURIOUS TAXIS

Berlin.—The placing of a heavy luxury tax upon automobiles and the ending of inflation profits with the new currency have combined to give Berlin some of the most elegant and luxurious taxicabs in Europe. These were formerly the private cars of war and inflation profiteers, who were obliged to get rid of them for a mere pittance when the government acted.

HEIDLSBURG

Heidlsburg.—J. F. Houck, Gordon Fisher and Lewis Carver returned to their homes from a western trip Sunday.

Miss Louise Rebert is spending several weeks in Frederick, Maryland. Miss Martha Slaybaugh and Mrs. Clarence Ecker are visiting friends in York.

Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Houck were: Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Spangler, Glenn Kennedy, Gordon Fisher, Rev. J. Harold Little, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Houck, Helen Houck, Bruce Funt and Clyde Kennedy.

Earle Rebert, Maurice Bowers, Gerald Rebert, Maurice Fidler and Jodi Gochenour recently returned from Camp Meade where they spent the last month in training.

Mr. and Mrs. John Spangler, of Gardners; Mr. and Mrs. George Stallsmith, Violet Stallsmith and Helen Stallsmith were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Stallsmith.

Glenn Poffenberger, of Highfield, and Dr. Frank Kramer spent Wednesday with J. F. Houck.

Stanley Davison, of Harrisburg, has been visiting his grandmother, Mrs. William Yohe.

Miss Loretta Weikert is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Edward Weigle.

Miss Chloe Asper and Roy Asper spent Wednesday in Gettysburg.

Miss Ethel Houck and J. F. Houck visited relatives in Hanover several days.

JOSSELYN'S WIFE

"Excellent!" he said. "Then we can get hold of Lizzie again if we need her."

"The telephone Aunt Elsie," Ellen added thoughtfully. She went into the nursery where Lizzie had been reading to Tommy and sent the girl out.

Lizzie was downstairs not more than fifteen minutes. Ellen looked fearfully at her face when she came up.

"It wasn't anything," Lizzie said, in a low tone, over her packing. "He just asked me a few questions, and how I knew there was a pistol in that drawer—and whether I had heard anything about Mr. Josselyn and his father fighting—he spoke kind enough, and a young fellow there wrote it down. I said I hadn't been downstairs until after they had their trouble."

"Listen," said Tommy, rushing in from the other room, and insinuating his person into his mother's lap, "Will you tell Aunt Elsie that I can go down on the ice?"

"You be a good boy for Lizzie, dearest," Ellen said, kissing him. "And you'll keep him absolutely by himself, Lizzie," she asked. "I don't want him to hear any talk of this." Ellen sighed in sick foreboding. There would be talk enough! She had his luncheon and Lizzie's brought upstairs, and saw them off at one o'clock. Gibbs came up for a moment, looking white, and Tommy gave his parents frantic hugs for good-bye. Ellen breathed easier when the little boy was out of the atmosphere of death and mystery.

CHAPTER XII

"Just tell me simply and fully all about yesterday," said the district attorney pleasantly. Ellen, facing him across the big table in the library, smiled nervously in answer to his encouraging smile. The library seemed full of men; some writing, some watching her. Doctor Cutter was there, and George Lathrop. The air was thick with the odor of strong cigars, and also the smell of trays of coffee and sandwiches that had been taken away a short time before.

She began shakily, gaining confidence as she went on. They were all kind to her; they even infused a sort of brightness into the air. Occasionally she was interrupted, but the questions were unexpectedly few and brief.

"Just a minute there, Mrs. Josselyn. About that revolver. You came into the study and found the girl looking at it?"

"She had it in her hand."

"Raised in the air?"

"Oh, no, lying idly on the table. She was frightened when I came in. I threw it in the drawer, and shut the drawer."

"She didn't go back to that room again?"

"I am sure she did not. She has told you it was a quarrel with her fiancé—with my brother, in fact, that made her desperate. I sent for my brother, and they were reconciled."

"She couldn't have gone downstairs after dinner?"

"I know she did not. We were talking until late—until after ten o'clock, and when she went back to the nursery she left the door open. She spoke to me again while she was brushing her hair. And at eleven I went to look at my son and I saw her asleep."

"You had not suspected her attachment to your brother?"

"No, sir. She had been my aunt's helper, and it began then."

Ellen went on with her recital. When she finished there was a tense stillness in the room.

George rose and filled a glass with water and brought it to her. There was a general stir among the room's occupants; a sibilant murmur was audible.

"Now, Mrs. Josselyn, there are some questions I should like to ask you." Ryan laid down his notes and cleared his throat. "I want you to go back to the scene of the quarrel. At the time you were standing on the landing and you saw and heard everything that was done and said. Did you know what the quarrel was about?"

"Not then. No, sir."

"Not then—I see. But later you did?"

"Later my father-in-law told me that it was because he had seen the item in the paper."

"The item, yes—we have that here. But you saw the two men fight?—yes. And now tell me, did you hear your husband say anything in that fight? Begin at the beginning."

"They talked so low—and so fast—" Ellen said, beginning to tremble. "I couldn't hear it all. But I heard Mr. Josselyn call out: 'That's a deliberate falsehood!' and then my husband said that he could not say that to him—"

"Didn't he say, 'I'll kill you if you say that again?'" Ryan suggested.

"Didn't He Say 'I'll Kill You if You Say That Again?'" Ryan suggested.

"Why, I thought—I thought he would be less troubled in the morning, and that I would try to—that I would talk to him then."

"You would try to—will you tell us what you started to say?"

"Well—I would try to—to reconcile them, I suppose."

Ryan took off his glasses and polished them with a large silk handkerchief, looking at them the while.

"That is, you thought that he was still angry rather than sorry?" he asked.

"No—I can't say that I thought that," Ellen said, attempting to speak firmly.

The glasses went on again and Ryan looked at her.

"You had good news for him, you know," he reminded her kindly. "You had to tell him that his father was sorry for the trouble and willing to forgive and forget. Wouldn't it be natural to suppose that such news would be welcome to a man who was bitterly repentant for his anger?"

"I suppose so," Ellen faltered.

"But that didn't occur to you? You felt that he was still too enraged to be approached in that way?"

Ellen felt suffocated. The close room, the watching faces, the quiet, merciless voice that probed her very soul, the dark walls with their dignified lining of books, the windows against which snow was beginning to fall softly, all began to waver in black fog before her eyes—she felt a hideous sensation of nausea.

George sprang to her side, and she caught his arm.

"You're all right, dear!" he said, tenderly, his eyes close to hers. She looked dazedly into them, and spoke in a childish bewildered voice:

"Yes, I'm all right, George."

"Would you like to rest a few minutes, Ellen?"

"Oh, no, thank you!" she said quickly. And turning back with great dignity to the district attorney, she answered: "I thought I would not distress my husband with any reference to the matter that night. I thought sleep would do us all good, and make us see things in a better light."

"That was quite natural," Ryan said mildly. The tension in the library relaxed. "That is all, Mrs. Josselyn." Some of the men rose; there was a little stir and confusion in the room. Ellen went out with George. She turned to him in the hall.

"Was that all right?" she asked, giddy and uncertain. He nodded reassuringly. They went into the music room, where Gibbs sat, with Joe and Doctor Cutter. There was a tray there with some food on it, the coffee urn was steaming, and Ellen was glad to have a cup of coffee; it was two o'clock. She felt as if she could never get enough of the scalding, reviving drink, but she would not touch the solids, although Joe brought her cold chicken and salad on a plate, and coaxed her to eat.

George ate heartily, with great bites, walking about the while, and talking to them all. After a few minutes, however, he said he must go back to the library, and Gibbs went with him. Ellen had sat down close to her husband on the wide davenport, and put her cold little hand into his. He was pale, and looked tired, but there was a new look of peace in his eyes.

"Poor little old girl," he said to her. "I'll get you out of all this, and carry you off to the country somewhere—and make it all up to you!"

"Of course you understand that this is a sort of preliminary formality, Gibbs?" George asked him.

"And after this, does the coroner bring in his verdict?" Joe added.

"The coroner and the county detectives have been all over the study," George said. "The circumstance of the pistol being found seventeen feet away from the body, and some other details, are conclusive. Death came from a revolver shot that was fired by some person or persons unknown. Ryan is going at it thoroughly; that's his business. We've had all the maids in, they've all satisfied him of their absolute innocence. Every one of them has an alibi."

"Then, what's all this?" Ellen asked.

"This is merely one of the district attorney's duties of office. He is bound to find out what he can, while the whole matter is fresh." George put down his coffee cup and threw his crumpled napkin on the tray. "You understand that anything you say now may be used later, Gibbs?" he said, clearing his throat.

"Perfectly."

"They've pretty well satisfied themselves as to the order of events," George continued. "What they'll try to get out of you is that matter of where you were last night?"

"They asked Lizzie where she was, and they asked me!" Ellen said eagerly.

"They've asked everyone," George assured her.

"I can only tell them what I told you this morning, George," Gibbs said, calmly.

George shot him a look, but nodded as if he were satisfied.

"That's all right. Shall we go?" They went off together.

Time wore slowly on. Ellen and Joe talked for awhile in low tones; the snow lapsed against the windows of the little music room. Before three o'clock the first reporter appeared.

When Ellen went back to the music room Joe told her that Lillian had been fainting and that Doctor Cutter was with her.

"Did you know that she went off with that man Pepper for dinner last night, Ellen?" he asked.

"Last night!" Ellen echoed, amazed.

"Yes, it seems that she wanted to see Pepper, or he wanted to see her—she just used the Pointdexter invitation as a blind. They went off somewhere for dinner, the Wayside Inn, it was, and then he took her to Mrs. Pointdexter's house, about twelve."

"How did you know this, Joe?"

"It's Lillian's alibi: she told Ryan the whole thing. Cutter was telling me. It seems that they were there until the place was actually closing, talking. Ryan has sent for the fellow who runs the Inn." Joe shook his head, half-smiled. "Gosh, she's lucky!" he ejaculated. "She's got a dozen people to prove what she did; she wasn't even in the house herself!"

Wilson Hummelbaugh attended the sixth annual Harbaugh reunion at Pen-Mar last Saturday. The following speakers were present: Miss Everetts, a teacher of Baltimore; Mr. Linawever, of Philadelphia, and Doctor Bonner, of Waynesboro. Descendants of the Harbaugh family were represented from Winchester, Virginia, Indiana, New Jersey, Maryland and Pennsylvania. Dr. Henry Harbaugh was the founder of Mercersburg College. It is in honor of him that this reunion is held. Mr. Linawever, one of the speakers, is the grandson of Doctor Harbaugh.

FENCING MATCHES

Halle, Germany.—Fencing matches, which have been popular in many German universities, but with which there has been a growing dissatisfaction on the part of the public, will probably be discontinued as a result of a fatal accident recently at the University of Halle.

ARENDTSVILLE

Arendtsville.—The settled rain last Sunday forenoon was beneficial to all vegetation, especially the corn and potatoes.

Aaron Schlosser, formerly of this place, but who now resides in Harrisburg, spent the week-end here with friends.

Frank Dome, of Atlantic City, New Jersey, and brother, Charles, of Dover, Delaware county, was here last Friday to attend the funeral of their sister, Miss Annie F. Dome.

Mrs. Robert Mays, of Reading, was a recent visitor in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Pitzer.

John A. Knous and Mr. and Mrs. Myron Knouse are visitors in the home of Ralph Knouse in Youngstown, Ohio. Jacob A. Trostle, of New Carlisle, Ohio, is a visitor here in the home of his brother, Abraham F. Trostle.

Last Monday Lawrence E. Myers caught five black bass in the Cone-wago creek. They measured from 15 to 20 inches in length, the largest weighing three pounds.

Dr. Syntax Was Stern Student, but Milly Won

By ELMER PHILLIPS

DOCTOR SYNTAX was not more than forty, though he seemed bowed beneath the weight of his recondite investigations.

When Alcyonus Benton, his friend and colleague, died, ten years before, leaving his twelve-year-old daughter to Doctor Syntax, it was the most natural thing in the world that the kindly old doctor should take the child into his household. After old Janet died, Milly quite naturally became the doctor's housekeeper.

And now certain persons had whispered that it was not proper for an unmarried man, even a professor, to live alone in the house with the girl.

Doctor Syntax had been in love when he was a young man. The object of his devotion had married another; but, though he had long ceased to think of her, the memory of that first love had clung around him like a radiant cloud, softening his spirit and fitting it for high idealism. Sometimes the thought of Milly had, of late, revived that memory.

But when the ultimatum went forth that society considered Milly ought to be relegated to another sphere, the professor had a ridiculous dream. It was absurd, to hope that Milly, the belle of the little town . . . and he an old fogey of forty!

At any rate, he must tell Milly. And he did so, when he met her in the library after dinner, which the professor always took alone.

"My dear," he said, "I have an unpleasant thing to say to you. It is a problem."

"Can't you solve it by algebra?" inquired Milly, looking at him with a twinkle in her eyes. "You know, you always say everything can be solved by algebra."

"And so it can, my dear," said Doctor Syntax.

"You remember how you found your spectacles," pursued Milly mischievously.

"But this is serious, Milly," said Doctor Syntax. "Some people in this town have apparently been putting their heads together and have come to the conclusion that it is not right for a single girl, even an adopted daughter, to keep house for an old bachelor like me. It is a preposterous idea, but the force of public opinion is like the symbol X, always handed when it is not wanted and never translatable into precise terms until the final solution."

"Well, I have come to the same conclusion myself," said Milly calmly.

"What!" exclaimed Doctor Syntax. He had expected a scene, strife, war—and here was Milly calmly acquiescing in his decision. "But what are you going to do, my dear?" he continued. "I can't bear the thought of losing you."

"You needn't lose me," said Milly, with preternatural gravity, studying her plate. But even then there was a mischievous twinkle in her eyes. "This is very strange, my dear," said Doctor Syntax. "You have accepted the public opinion as to the inadvisability of your remaining here as my housekeeper, and yet you say that I need not lose you. Logically, that implies that you could propose to remain here in some other capacity; and yet I fail to see what that could be, or how it could affect public opinion."

"Which we have designated X," said Milly, raising her eyes to the professor's for one fleeting moment. And in that moment the professor felt strangely disconcerted, and yet strangely glad. Unconsciously he threw back his shoulders.

"Well, my dear, suppose the variants are Y and Z," he said. "Now we have an indeterminate equation. X equals Y or Z multiplied by the unknown factor, which shall be N."

"Why not make it U?" asked Milly. "Make it U, Milly? The letter U is never used in mathematics except when the other letters of the alphabet have been almost exhausted."

"I should really prefer you to make it U," persisted Milly.

"Very well. U it shall be, then," said the professor.

"Oh, I'm afraid that would never do," said Milly. But, seeing that the professor was only staring at her in perplexity, she resigned herself. "Very well! Go on," she said.

"It is obvious, then, that X equals YU or ZU," said Doctor Syntax, warming to his task.

"YU," I think," said Milly gravely. "In that case," said the professor, "X, the unknown factor, equals Y divided by U. Now, algebra helps us no more unless we can state U in positive terms. Now let E be the possibility of your remaining here in the capacity of—secretary, let us say, and F the possibility of becoming—let us say my stenographer. Then U equals—"

"YF," said Milly, triumphantly. "Eh?" asked Doctor Syntax. "No, my dear, it couldn't equal YF, because—"

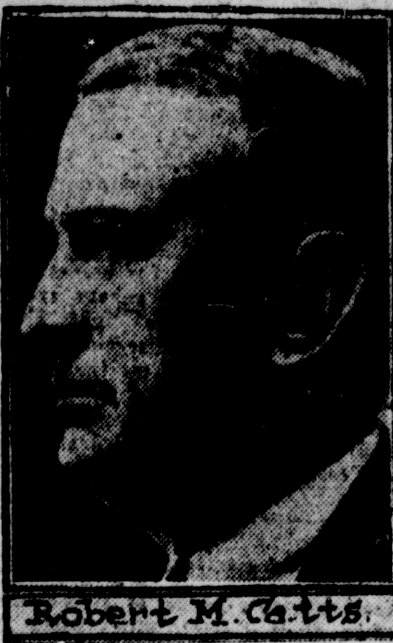

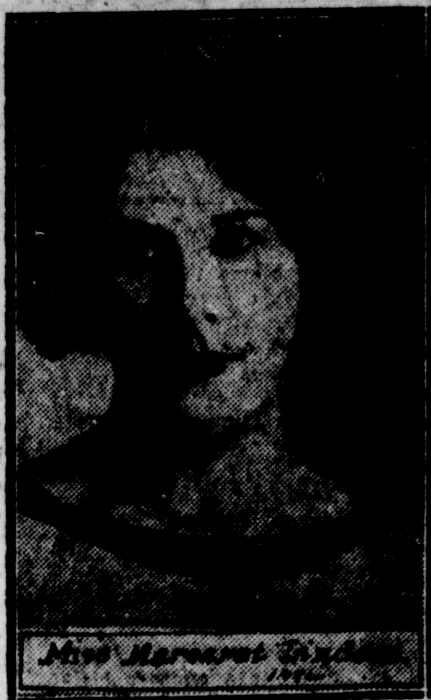

"Then I shall go," said Milly, rising from her chair, and the professor was amazed to hear a strangled sob.

"Now, Milly," he said gravely, "really you women are very illogical. YF is impossible. Stop! Listen to me, Milly, before you go out of that door. I—"

Doctor Syntax sprang toward her and clasped her in his arms. "Milly!" he cried. "I've—I've found my spectacles!"

Wit is that which excites agreeable surprise in the mind by the strange assemblage of related images presented to it.

ACTRESS SUES MAGNATE FOR $250,000.

Miss Margaret Linden, beautiful Australian actress, has filed suit in New York City for $250,000, alleging that when she visited Robert M. Catts, millionaire theatrical magnate in his luxurious apartment on the roof of a New York City apartment house, to discuss a new play with him, he beat her cruelly because she disagreed with him. Catts denies that he even knows Miss Linden. The roof garden conservatory of Catts' is a show place.

Truth gains more even by the errors of one who, with due study and preparation, thinks for himself, than by the true opinions of those who only hold them because they do not suffer themselves to think. Beg pardon is the best penitence.

The Reason:

For months past the coffee market has been advancing until it has reached a point where it is impossible to do otherwise than to raise the retail price.

A fortunate purchase, months ago, by our Coffee Buyer, enabled us to give Our Customers the advantage which we have done gladly ever since.

Now that the situation continues, and being obliged to obtain our requirements on the market level of today, compels us to add Three cents a pound to the price.

Rest assured, however, that the quality remains the same. We believe Our Customers, lovers of ASCO Coffee, would rather pay the advance, than to have their favorite cup disturbed.

Mrs. Emory Slaybaugh was a Gettysburg visitor Saturday.

The Misses Erma, Ethel and Hazel Slaybaugh spent Friday afternoon with Mrs. Edward Slaybaugh.

New Cheap Homes

Moscow.—Russia's scarcity of living accommodations and the high cost of building material have forced the Soviet authorities to experiment in the construction of what are termed "thermolite" houses, the invention of a Russian engineer named Peter Galakhoff. A thermolite house has the conventional framework of wood, but a liquid material of heavy consistency (thermolite), composed of sawdust, straw and common tree leaves, mixed with lime, plaster and antiseptic solution, is interposed between the outer and inner boards.

WHITE HALL

White Hall.—Mr. and Mrs. Clair Snyder and children, Catherine, Romaine and Roy, spent Sunday with Mrs. Snyder's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Pitzer, near Bonneauville.

ESKIMOS LACK GRAZING LANDS

Cordova, Alaska.—Alaska Eskimos with their large reindeer herds on the Seward Peninsula are facing the same problem that sheep men did in the western states years ago, according to William T. Lopp, superintendent of the Alaska division of the bureau of education.

"There are no land leasing or grazing laws in the north and, regardless of the natives' prior rights to the land, their reindeer herds are being slowly crowded out," said Superintendent Lopp.

It is the highest advantage to Whom chance frequently passes gain instruction from another's folly. Over, it at some time finds.

The pledge of the printed word

FRIENDSHIPS in ancient days were formed by pledges of blood. Medieval knights won mutual aid by pledges of the sword. But modern business forms friends in every corner of the world through the pledge of the printed word.

Advertisements are pledges made especially for you . . . pledges that advertised goods you buy are exactly as claimed.

When you buy an advertised phonograph, you buy one of established workmanship and tone. It has been tested by thousands before you. Its dealers, sure of its worth, invite the testing of millions more.

What is not advertised may be worth buying. What is, must be.

Motion Pictures of Lips Aid the Deaf to Speak

By means of motion pictures of the lips of a person speaking, the deaf, children with defective speech, and foreigners are greatly assisted in their efforts to talk correctly and to interpret sounds by lip-reading. A specially devised camera takes a series of "close-ups" of the "model" pronouncing the words, taking great care to move his lips in the precise position for forming the sounds. The pictures are shown with the words and symbols to accompany them, supplying a graphic "pattern" for the pupils to follow.

Concrete Railway Ties Have Wooden Plugs for Spikes

Concrete railway ties, used on a section of a right of way in northwestern India, have proved to resist wear and weather equally as well as wooden ones, according to a report. It is believed their employment will result in great savings of lumber and labor, since they will not require replacing as frequently as the timber. The cement beam consists of two blocks tied together with steel straps. The rails are fastened on by means of spikes driven into treated-wood plugs set in the concrete.

Tobacco Smoke Not Harmful According to Mine Test

To test the effect of tobacco fumes, three men were confined in a closed chamber where the air was so smoky that it was impossible to see across the room. The atmosphere was so irritating to the eyes that it was necessary to wear goggles.

After an hour and a half, samples of the air and the blood of the smokers were taken for analysis. The experiment was made by the bureau of mines, and, as a result, it was decided that the harm from smoking indoors, or in mines, is negligible.

Pulling Car Out of Mud

When stuck in mud the lone autoist need not despair as long as he has a pair of good chains with him, for, with their help, the car can usually be run out of the mud, providing, of course, it is not too deep. One end of a chain is fastened around the tire and to the spokes of a rear wheel, while a short, stout iron bar is pushed through the links at the other end of the chain and a tow rope tied to this bar. If no iron bar is handy or it is too large to be pushed through the links, the tow rope is tied to the last cross chain. The other end of the tow rope is securely tied to a tree located in front of the car, slightly toward the side. By applying power to the wheel, it will run along the chain for a foot or more. The operation is repeated until the wheel is out of the mud.

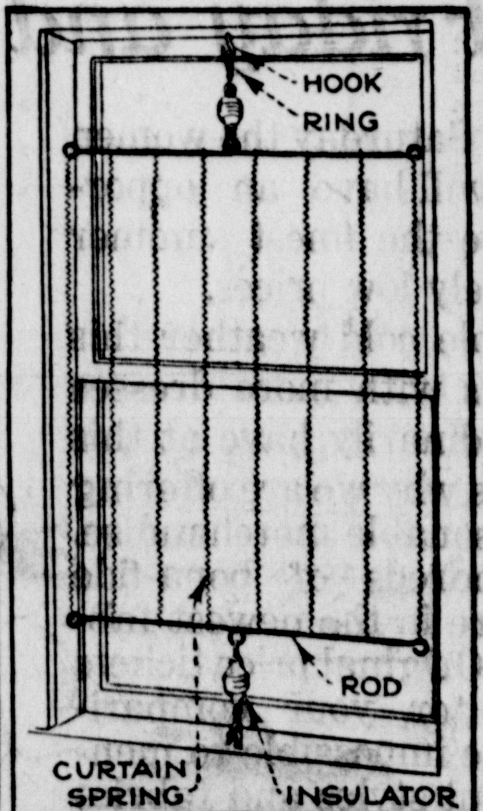

Cleaning White Woolens and Furs

Garments are often dry cleaned at home, but the result obtained in the case of white woolens or furs is not always satisfactory. However, the simple trick described below can be employed by anyone, and the results will prove a pleasant surprise.

After the woolen or fur has been washed and rinsed in gasoline, it should be wrung or shaken out thoroughly and placed in a deep pan. A pound or two of white flour should then be sifted over and rubbed into the article. After allowing the article to dry on the line, the flour is whipped out, leaving the garment in a cleaner and whiter condition than usual after cleaning. This is due to the fact that the flour sifts into the fur or fabric and absorbs the dirt with the gasoline that cannot be wrung or shaken out. When whipped out, the dry flour naturally carries the dirt with it.

Curtain Springs Make Simple Window Aerial

Various kinds of indoor aerials are advocated for buildings where any other type is impossible; one of the most effective is shown in the illustration. Two spreaders of heavy iron wire or light iron rod, a little shorter than the width of the window, are bent with an eye at each end, and one in the center. The two spreaders are connected with a number of the light curtain springs that are widely used instead of curtain rods. The efficiency of the aerial depends to a great extent upon the number of springs used. The spreaders are suspended between the top and bottom of the window casing, insulators being used as shown. The springs are drawn up tightly so that they will not touch each other, and the aerial will not swing.

Says Allenrhu Surely Conquers RHEUMATISM

Mr. James H. Allen, of 26 Forbes St., Rochester, N. Y., suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery, which he called Allenrhu to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers.

"The blessed relief this marvelous prescription quickly gives has made for it thousands of friends," says People's Drug Store who has been appointed agent in your city. It is Mr. Allen's own discovery.—adv.

ALLIED-GERMAN CONFAB, SUCCESS

(By Associated Press.)
London, Aug. 7.—The Allies and the Germans have reached a complete agreement on the manner in which defaults are to be declared under the Dawes plan.

The conference readers on the Allied side met this morning and shortly afterward the Germans were admitted to take part in discussion. French delegates said they were satisfied with the morning's meeting. They said the Germans presented their opposition in a moderate way and that the bulk of the discussion was most satisfactory.

Landing Place For U. S. Fliers Chosen

(By Associated Press.)
Washington Aug. 7.—A safe landing place for the world fliers on their next hop has been located by the army at San Pardi on the east coast of Greenland. The proposed site is about 750 miles from Reykjavik, Iceland, where the two fliers have been awaiting word of the success of the exploring party. It is expected that an early resumption of the flight will be made.

STOCK REPORT

(By Associated Press.)
New York, Aug. 7.—Stock prices moved irregularly higher at the opening of today's market. Profit taking in some groups was conducted simultaneously with bullish demonstrations. As a rule the changes were of a factional nature. Further irregularities developed during the morning as professional operators who had been largely responsible for the rapid advance of the last eight weeks showed a disposition to restrict their operations and give the market a breathing spell. Speculative interests were confined to specialties. Call money opened at two per cent.

Resort In North

The Hague, Holland—Queen Wilhelmina, her consort, Prince Henry, and the young Princess Juliana have selected a holiday resort which is somewhat out of the usual where royalty is concerned. They are spending a month in Northern Lapland, well above the Arctic Circle, where they are living the simple life, making excursions on foot, visiting the Lapp reindeer camps and sleeping in tourist huts like ordinary folk.

TEST IS POSTPONED

Real "Robinson Crusoe"

Alexander Selkirk was an adventurer, born in Largo, Scotland, in 1676. He was a skillful seaman and made several voyages to the South sea, in one of which, having quarreled with his commander, he was put ashore on the island of Juan Fernandez with a few supplies. Here he lived alone for four years and four months, when he was rescued by Capt. Woods Rogers. He returned to England in 1711, and is said to have given his papers to Defoe, who, from them, wrote the story of "Robinson Crusoe." Selkirk died on the ship Weymouth in 1723.

Famous the World Over

Epsom, England, is in the county of Surrey, 15 miles southwest of London. Epsom was formerly celebrated for a mineral spring, from the water of which the well-known Epsom salts were manufactured. A number of the sons of medical men are educated at the Royal Medical college, and adjoining the school is a home for aged physicians or their widows. The principal attraction is the grand race meeting held on the downs, which is attended by hundreds of thousands of persons.

Characters of History

Razi or Rhazes was an Arabian physician who lived from 852 to 922. He is noteworthy as being the first man to describe smallpox and measles in an accurate manner. Hugobald or Hucobald was a Benedictine monk and writer of music. He was born at Tourmai, France, about 840. He later started a school of music and other arts at Nevers. He was the inventor of the gamut. The only work positively ascribed to him is the Harmonicon Institute. He died in 980.

HUGE ORGAN TO BE BUILT

Los Angeles.—What is described as the largest orchestral organ in the world is to be installed in Hollywood Bowl, a natural open-air amphitheatre in the foothills of Hollywood.

It is said the organ will have pipes as long as 64 feet, with enough lumber in one of them to build a bungalow, and that the vibration in the bass chambers will have so great an intensity that if it should strike a human being, without interfering tones, it would knock him unconscious.

TRAINS PETER MANNING

Memphis.—Peter Manning, 1:56 1/2, the fastest trotting horse in history, is being groomed by Edward F. (Pop)

Geers, the celebrated reinaman, at Billings Park race track, for an extensive tour of the country this season. Geers also is training his record-breaking pony racer, Sanardo, 1:59 1/2, for the coming campaign.
